

Control

Reflect on what's been fighting for your attention and focus today. How much of it can you control?

There are a world of things fighting for all of our attention right now. Where possible, focus on what you can control, make happen and are personally responsible for.