

Your Line Manager

When it comes to your line manager, do you know what's most important to them right now?

The simplest way to create a positive relationship with that person is by knowing the answer to that question and working towards a solution.

And if you don't know the answer. You most likely need to improve the frequency and quality of communication you have with them. It can then form part of your ongoing dialogue and be an opportunity for you to celebrate successes, develop others and build better relationships.